

Daryl Johnny
Megan Dark

Indigenous Foods & Food Sovereignty

UBC Learning Circle | January 21, 2020

Daryl Johnny

ʔEsdilagh First Nation

Megan Dark

Interior Health
T̓silhqot'in National Government

“

These foods are who we are.
They're what we fought for.

Canning ts'eman (sockeye salmon)

Daryl's Story

“We lived like kings in the mountains”

“

We lived with the seasons and had everything we needed.

We are what we eat

“My granny put her whole heart into every meal”

“

Government and industry have mismanaged our land.

“

Their plan to destroy us worked.

“Now the government is talking about reconciliation. This is our chance.”

?Esdilagh Land Sovereignty Work

Mushroom Permits

?Esdilagh First Nation in the Cariboo-Chicotin has declared a ban on the moose hunt, saying there are many new roads and access to sensitive moose habitat as a result of 2017 firefighting. Angie Mindus photo

?Esdilagh First Nation bans moose hunt in its traditional territory

Community located between Williams Lake and Quesnel says moose are too vulnerable to hunt after wildfires.

?Esdilagh First Nation Chief Victor Roy Stump will sign a memorandum of understanding with the B.C. Conservation Service June 15, in an effort to work with the province to protect the declining moose population. Contributed photo

Cariboo First Nation signs landmark moose hunt agreement with Conservation Officer Service

The agreement means members will adhere to Wildlife Act restrictions on moose hunting in the region

MELANIE LAW / Jun. 14, 2018 10:30 a.m. / NEWS

?Esdilagh Land Sovereignty Work

Revitalizing Indigenous Food Ways

UBC Learning Circle

January 21, 2020

Carla Lewis

My son Levi and I

Indigenous Foods Revolution!

THERE IS —NO—PLANET B

- Teaching them to love the land and all our relations
- Teaching our traditional values
- Integrating ceremony
- Upholding roles as providers for the family
- Gathering/harvesting/preparing a part of our every day lives
- Teaching them to defend the land and all our relations

Permaculture Design & Indigenous Ways of Knowing

Solidarity for Indigenous Food & Land Sovereignty

